The 87th Annual Meeting of Southern Iowa Electric Cooperative was held September 3rd at the cooperative. There was a total of 640 ballots cast. Members were able to vote by mailing in their ballots or by bringing the ballots to SIEC in person. Members were able to vote for three candidates per ballot. The voting results were as follows: Alica Bales 352 votes, Jody Crane 333 votes, Ryan Davis 420 votes, Stewart Nebel 290 votes, Dave Yahnke 456 votes.

We would like to thank the following
counting committee
members for their help with our Annual Meeting:

Karen Cantrell,
Phyllis Ward, Jo Altheide and Whitney Wettstein

Get rid of goosebumps
by eliminating ghostly drafts! The winter chill is just around the corner, so now is the time to seal air leaks
around your home.
Apply caulk and
weatherstripping
around drafty windows
and doors to make your home more comfortable
(and lower energy use.)

TEACHERS EXPLORE ENERGY EDUCATION

Teachers from across Missouri and Iowa explored how energy is produced, delivered and used during the 14th annual Energy in Today's Classroom program, held July 29-30, in Jefferson City, Missouri. Hosted by Central Electric Power Cooperative, the two-day workshop provided 15 hours of professional development for the 37 participating educators. Attendees learned about energy fundamentals, the economics of energy, electric vehicles, energy demand and residential solar. They also completed a hands-on circuitry project and toured a Central Electric substation near St. Martins and the University of Missouri's Combined Cooling, Heat and Power Plant in Columbia, Missouri. Each teacher received educational materials and a $500 scholarship for teaching tools to help bring energy lessons to life for students in their classroom. The lessons can be adapted for students of all ages. This year SIEC sponsored Lisa Thompson with Van Buren County schools. The next Energy in Today's Classroom program will be held July 28-29, 2027. Teachers interested in participating should contact their local electric cooperative for details.
